Build Cross-Functional Teams to Properly Manage Deductions & Disputes

Deductions can arise from a number of sources such as trade credits, price discrepancies, returned merchandise, product damage, etc. Oftentimes these deductions fall through the cracks in a company's system due to the fact that there is no system in place to properly collaborate on these issues and solve them in a timely manner. A vast majority of the information regarding deductions and disputes resides outside the accounting system, forcing members of your A/R Department to work externally in a highly manual manner to trace the sources of each deduction and dispute.

Cforia Software delivers an application designed specifically to optimize this workflow. The Automation Platform provides your company with the visibility necessary for both your customers and members of your A/R Department to work together to track down the root-cause of all deductions and disputes.
